

PROTECTION ALL ROUND.

The Walker Lake Bulletin believes not only in protecting manufactures from the cheap labor of Europe, but also in protecting Americans from the pauper invasion of the Old World. Referring to the part the Republican party of Nevada is to take in the coming struggle it says:

No party is organized to serve the purposes of candidates. No party can exist which can show no higher aim than the election of one or more men. The Republican party of the State fully recognizing that it is a means to the accomplishment of an end, which end is the greatest good for all, will allow all individual preferences to fall before the question of how best to serve the people for whose benefit it was organized, and for whose benefit the organization is maintained. Protection is its vital principle. Protection of life, liberty and labor. The claims of all candidates are subservient to the claims of the principles of the party. Recognizing the true direction of its mission, it will pronounce not only in favor of American manufactures but also in favor of the protection of the American laborer. Believing that there are enough people in this country it will call for a restriction of immigration and for a repeal of all laws which have a tendency to induce a continuance of the tide of immigrants now flowing from Europe.

It will not lay before the people half way measures so formulated that they can be used to catch votes and ignored after election. It will place a plank of protection in its platform and its candidates will stand there even after the election. It will not make promises the fulfillment of which will be barren, but will say to the Country "We will protect those who are here" and will point out the manner in which such protection shall be accomplished.

There will be no empty talk but meaning language in its call for support from the workingmen. The Republicans of Nevada will say there are enough here we will close the gates and the people will understand and endorse their words.

Grover Preplexed.

"Dan'l."
"Yes, sir."
"The newspapers say they raise wool in Texas; is that so?"
"I have consulted my cyclopedia, sir, and it is so set down."
"And do you think North Car'l'ny will go against me because it wants the tax off tobacco and whisky?"

"I fear it may, sir."
"But Carlisle and Mills told me they didn't raise anything but razor-backed hogs and yellow dogs down there in Texas and North Car'l'ny. They're pretty close together, ain't they, Dan?"

"Not very close, sir."
"And Dan," after a pause. What causes the contented grin that sits so placidly on John Sherman's face? You don't think this revenue reform message has made me make a fool of myself again, do you?"

"No, sir," slowly and impressively, "not exactly. But you've opened a big jack-pot on nothing but a pair of queens, and I'm mighty 'fraid the Republican party holds four aces."

And Dan fell on Grover's neck and wept.

A Pointer.

One of Beauregard's old soldiers sent him a dollar and requested him to send him a lottery ticket so as to win a big prize. He said: "I was always at my post and never disobeyed orders. I came out of the war without clothes enough to wad a shotgun." The General answered: "My dear comrade—I send you a ticket that I hope will draw a prize, and beg leave to give you a pointer: If you stick to the Louisiana lottery for four years as faithfully as you did to the Southern Confederacy, you will not have money enough to wad a popgun."
